From Birkie Headquarters ...

The American Birkebeiner Ski Foundation, Board of Directors, Race Staff and Event Volunteers want to take this opportunity to thank you, the skier, for your participation in the 22nd Dyno American Birkebeiner.

I want to personally thank all the participants who wrote and commended the volunteer staff on their outstanding efforts. These notes, letters and phone calls are very much appreciated and taken to the heart. For those of you who let us know you aren't as happy, for whatever reason, we take those just as seriously and hopefully grow from your concerns and learn from it. Please remember that sometimes your need may not fit into the format of some six or seven thousand other skiers.

Again, thanks for making the 1994 Birkie the best ever!

The Birkie Hits Olympic Heights

Last year was our first "live" coverage of the Dyno American Birkebeiner. We walked away from that experience with one goal in mind: show more of the race -- the athletes, the strategy, the action.

At this year's start at Telemark, we produced a four camera shoot (compared with just one last year) with KDLH Sports Director Marsh Nelson and Race Analyst Gary Larson. But where does one place four cameras so as not to interfere with the skiers? On top of a horse barn and lift building, of course!

After assuring our camera people that we did, indeed, have the proper insurance, up the cameras went with some of our best photographers.

The pictures from this year's start are spectacular! Words cannot describe the color, speed and power of a Dyno American Birkebeiner start.

We videotaped the starts of the two elite waves followed by the next two waves. Then we had to show some speed ourselves if we were to get the tape from this crew from Telemark to the Satellite Truck at the finish line in Hayward.

The race, as you know, started at 8:55 a.m. Our broadcast started at 10:00 a.m. If we didn't get the video of the start to the Satellite Truck in Hayward before 10:00 a.m. ... well, we were told to "keep on driving."

With the sensational start captured on videotape, what could we do to capture Birkie strategy leading up to the finish?

We deployed a "remote" camera and crew at two locations along the course. These remotes were hooked to portable microwave transmitters that beamed picture and sound to microwave receivers placed in the First Congregational Church steeple near the finish line. Cables from these receivers ran down to our Satellite Truck, also near the finish.

It was from these two remotes that we were hoping to see something very special. We were not disappointed.

As the lead skiers hit Lake Hayward, our first remote camera picked them up. Our second remote camera captured them leaving the lake and heading down Railroad Street. It was at this point -- near the Birkie Torch -- that our catwalk camera caught them and followed them right down Main Street and across the finish line.

It was this sequence that showed the strategy and sheer determination of a Birkie finish. You have to see it to believe it.

At the finish, KDLH Sports Anchor Paul Guggenheimer and Race Analyst Peter Graves were calm and collected as they presented the exciting, unfolding race to the viewers. But just yards away, it was a completely different story.

Inside our Satellite Truck, things were bedlam -- to the untrained eye. With two remote cameras, two microwave systems, four finish line cameras, several videotape machines, graphics, audio, several radios connecting spotters and producers to the truck, computers, a direct line to the KDLH studios back at Duluth ... well, let's just say that during a "live" production, the inside of a Satellite Truck is not for the meek.

By all accounts, we pulled off a pretty good broadcast of an incredible event. But it would not have been possible without the help of Executive Director Marilyn Schutz, her gang at the office, the Birkie Board, and above all, all of the volunteers who help make each and every Birkie one to remember!

It wasn't until Monday that the KDLH Crew learned that their efforts had a coast-to-coast audience. CBS Sports in Norway had monitored our satellite feed and decided to show the Birkie start and finish as part of their Saturday afternoon Olympic coverage! The Dyno American Birkebeiner had just reached an audience of "Olympic" scale, to say the least.

Now that Birkie '94 is history and permanently recorded on videotape (which you can purchase, just ask at the Birkie Office), what's in store for KDLH-TV3 and Birkie '95?

Stay tuned ...

Sharp's Great American Ski Chase: America's Premier Marathon Series

More than 10,000 skiers turned out in nine different locations this winter for the 1994 Sharp's Great American Ski Chase (GASC), the country's top cross country ski marathon series and a sponsor of the 1994 Dyno American Birkebeiner.

The Birkebeiner, North America's largest cross country ski race, was the fourth race in the nine-event 1994 GASC schedule, and the 1994 Chase winner was in the field of more than 6,600 skiers that day.

Sponsored by Sharp's, America's premier non-alcohol brew, the Chase is the centerpiece of Sharp's sponsorship program with U.S. Skiing. Sharp's became involved with the Great American Ski Chase during the 1991-92 season by becoming the title sponsor for the series. The affiliation was a natural -- a series of fun, aerobic, endurance activities sponsored by a product which tastes great but doesn't affect performance.

"Sharp's is pleased to team up with U.S. Skiing and sponsor the Chase," said Ron Richards, Sharp's brand manager. "Sharp's will help skiers 'keep their edge,' It has the smooth, refreshing taste of real beer, without the alcohol."

Two-time Chase men's champion, Audun Endestad of Fairbanks, AK, finished 20th in the Dyno American Birkebeiner, about 10 minutes behind Birkie champion Tomas Caslavsky of Czechoslovakia, who posted his first win. Caslavsky won in a sprint to the finish with a pack of four who led most of the race. Endestad and three-time Birkie champion, Manfred Nagl, were both back in the next pack.

On the momentum of a win at the Minnesota Finlandia and two other top, strong finishes, Endestad was leading after the Birkie with a one point lead over Mark King of Minneapolis. Following closely on their heels, all within a point of each other, were Fredrik Landstedt, also of Fairbanks, Bjorn Laukli, Boulder, CO, and Jim Curran, Jackson, WY.

All of that has now changed after the results of the White Mountain Chase in Waterville Valley, NH, and the Tour of Anchorage in Anchorage. Landstedt was able to post an easy win in Anchorage and a surprising tie between Dave Spaidal and Endestad in Waterville Valley changed the overall points drastically. Landstedt currently holds the lead with 68 points, followed closely by Endestad with 67.5 due to his tie. Mark King has dropped to third with 55 points, followed by Laukli and Curran, who has not skied in the last three marathons. Changes could still happen with three races yet to score (as of presstime).

On the women's side, Bonnie Weiskopf of Shoreview, MN, who has won two of the events, still has the lead, despite illness at the Birkie and an injury that hampered her in Waterville Valley. Second is currently held by Jeannie Wall of Bozeman, MT, who was easily the women's winner at the White Mountain Chase. Wall, who has only been skiing competitively for two years, finished just two spots away from an Olympic berth at the National Championships in January. If she continues on the Chase circuit, she could be a threat to Weiskopf. Sarah Konrad, Bozeman, MT, who finished third overall last year, is currently in third, six points behind Wall.

In its 16th year, the Chase has historically attracted some of America's and the world's finest skiers, offering them the opportunity to meet the challenge of the long-distance marathon. Most participants in the series, however, are citizen skiers who simply enjoy the excitement of cross country marathon skiing.

The 1994 Chase's schedule of nine events covers 408 kilometers and includes races from New Hampshire to California.

The Chase is governed by the U.S. Marathon Commission, a group representing race sites, athletes, and the ski industry. Awards and standings in each race and in the series overall are broken down by class competition in five-year increments starting at age 18. All Sharp's GASC marathons are part of the USSA National Ranking system, counting for points races for licensed competitors.

This year's series opened on February 5 with the 1st Security Boulder Mountain Tour, a 30-kilometer event in Sun Valley, ID, that drew 740 skiers in its second year on the GASC schedule. The series finishes on the other side of the country, with the Fischer California Gold Rush in Soda Springs, CA, on March 27, with an anticipated 450 skiers.

1994 NORTHERN LAKES CO-OP TORCHLITE 10K

The first annual Northern Lakes Co-op Torchlite 10K fun race was held on Thursday, February 24 at 6:00 p.m. on a shortened course. The race began on Main Street in Hayward and finished at the Hayward Golf and Tennis Club.

What made this race unique was the time of day and the course itself. The race course was marked by torch pots, which were placed every hundred feet on either side of the trail. The light from the torch pots guided skiers along the trail.

Mike Canik, General Manager of Northern Lakes Co-op, said, "this was not a race, but more of an event". He explained that the festive atmosphere was something for the entire family -- young and old. Northern Lakes Co-op wanted something to make the event different, and the idea of a night torchlite race really fit the bill.

All registered skiers were invited to enjoy complimentary food and drink at the end of the race. Upper Lakes Foods provided brats and hot dogs. Coca-Cola provided soft drinks and American Espresso provided coffee. A large heated tent was set up at the finish for skiers to enjoy the post-race camaraderie.

More than a hundred Northern Lakes Co-op employees had volunteered their time and effort for this year's 10K.

Character Building

—by Luke Skinner

Skinner, a member of the Rossignol Ski Team, tries to put his tenth Birkie into perspective.

The Birkie has always been a character builder. It has the ability to bring out things in people they never knew existed. Toughness, grit, determination and frustration are only a few of the character building blocks, but at the foundation is a sense of accomplishment. This Birkie was no exception. The trail was groomed perfectly after snow had fallen prior to the big day. Old man winter decided to visit us and breathe a cold, chilly wind down our necks at race time. The thermometer bottomed out around fifteen below in the early morning, making the fresh snow very slow.

To me, this was the Birkie at its finest. What can build more character than skiing 52 kilometers on a tough, hilly course in slow snow? Personally, I was hoping for a rock hard, fast course. My fitness level left something to be desired and I was hoping my technique would carry me through. Instead, the course was tailored for the fittest of people from the Elite wave to wave ten.

My goal from the outset was ski conservatively and survive. I survived -- barely. But you know what? I enjoyed every minute of it. I am thankful for a healthy body and mind that provides the opportunity to experience the Birkie. Many people are not so fortunate and will never be able to challenge themselves in such an arena. Sometimes I think people lose their perspective. Respect is lost for fellow competitors and they forget why they are participating in the first place. The Birkie is more than just getting to the finish line. It is the challenge itself that motivates people to participate; the internal battle to accomplish a difficult task and the personal satisfaction of knowing you did it.

Two friends of mine decided to classic ski the race. These two fellows are accomplished skiers looking to test themselves with a personal rivalry. As they got out on to the course, many skiers were skating over the set tracks on the uphills. These two fellows, skiing faster than many of the skaters, had trouble passing. One skater was asked to move off the tracks and wouldn't respond to their request. Finally, the classic skier skied over the skater's ski that was angled out over the tracks. The skater responded by whacking the classic skier on the thigh with his pole. Tempers flared but nothing more came of the incident, except for the skater being called a "Tonya." I had to smile when I heard the story. I had been there before. But I realized it takes something away from your effort. Frustration leads to anger and the experience can be lost in the heat of it all. It must be realized that we are not the only skier on the trail that matters. It's pretty hard to miss when you're surrounded by thousands of skiers.

Cross country ski guru Mitch Mode of Rhinelander, Wisconsin, once said that many competitive skiers tend to lose sight of skiing just for the sake of skiing. That skiing becomes a "means to an end" and not the end result. I believe him. One person who lives just to feel the snow under his skis and cold wind in his face, is my friend Deno Mense of Hayward. You can see the excitement in his face and the appreciation for the moment. We have spent a few days skiing the Birkie trail during past winters and it's always the same. Leave life behind and enjoy the moment. That is what I tried to do this Birkie. Sometimes it's hard to do when you are staggering up the last climb before Lake Hayward dreaming of a cab ride and a Frisco Burger.

Deno decided to share his Birkie experience first-hand with the world by wearing a microphone and tape recorder during the race. Deno gave a first-hand account of his race as it happened. At "OO" Deno dropped off the tape, put in a new one and continued on. The first tape was whisked over to the local radio station and played for everyone to hear. A friend of mine listening to the radio found it very entertaining, especially the start with all the chatter and sounds of clanking equipment. Deno, on the other hand, found it difficult to ski and talk, especially on a tough day.

By the way, for those of you who don't think elite skiers stop to eat along the trail, think again. Cycling great Davis Phinney found himself camped out with a few other elite skiers at one of the final food stops, grazing on doughnut holes and oranges before finding the energy to continue to the finish. I probably should have followed suit, but no, I continued on paying the ski gods for my foolishness (and almost cab fare) by praying for divine intervention and levitate me to the finish line.

Overall, I hope most competitors' experiences are on the positive side. This doesn't mean having easy skiing on the trail. They're not supposed to. This is the Birkie. This is where the sense of accomplishment comes in. I have huge amounts of respect for all those who finish after the elite wave. You are out there working just as hard and for a lot longer time. No matter how lousy you feel when you first finish the race, hours later you'll be talking about how you can get better next year. Confidence builds, self-esteem increases and you get this weird sense of satisfaction when your co-workers think you're "nuts" for skiing 32 miles when you could have driven it in your car.

Hats off to all the competitors and volunteers, you make the Birkie what it is today. A special thanks to the volunteers at the food stops who helped me and thousands of other skiers reach the finish line. I hope your experience at the Birkie was as good as mine.

Practical Guidelines For Prevention Of Injuries: Part II

Part II of a two-part series.

—by J. Scott Straker, M.S., P.T., A.T.C., and Debra A. Zillmer, M.D., P.T., Western Wisconsin Sports Medicine, an affiliate of the Gundersen Clinic, Ltd.

Western Wisconsin Sports Medicine and Gundersen Clinic, Ltd., LaCrosse, Wisconsin, are the official sports medicine consultants to the 1994 Dyno American Birkebeiner.

In Part I of this article we discussed the mechanisms by which injuries can occur during cross country skiing. A focus was placed on elements which lead to injury such as improperly fitting equipment, training errors and technical problems in performing both the diagonal and freestyle strides. It was noted that the majority of injuries occur as a result of prolonged, repetitive stress placed on specific body parts over the course of training and competition, the so-called "overuse" injuries.

In this follow-up article, we will discuss and describe various strengthening and flexibility exercises which can be used in your preparation for Birkie '95. At this point in time you may be thinking to yourself "give me a break, I just finished this race" and "let me savor this Birkie for a while"! Our intent here is to provide you with a few suggestions (our friend Duncan McLean might say "information nuggets") which will help you prepare for next year's competition and cut down on your likelihood of injury or post-race discomfort.

In general, pre-season stretching and strengthening should begin months before the first snowfall and actual skiing. In addition to rollerskiing and rollerblading during the summer and fall seasons, a well-rounded exercise program will enhance your training base and better prepare you for winter skiing. Your program should include three sessions per week of specific strengthening exercises and daily flexibility/stretching activities.

The guidelines for a strengthening program for cross country skiing should closely match the nature or demand of the sport itself (i.e. low loads with high repetitions to build endurance). The program should also provide a so-called "overload" to the musculoskeletal system which will stimulate adaptation of muscles and tendons to increase their strength and ability to withstand the stresses of actual ski training and competition. This overload is produced by resistance exercise. Resistance can be provided by free weights, weight machines, sport cord and working against gravity.

The number of repetitions performed in the strengthening program should follow a stair-step approach, beginning initially with a resistance which allows the completion of ten repetitions and climbing as strength increases over time to 30 repetitions per set. Each exercise should incorporate from two to three sets. An example of this format is as follows:

Day 11	(30 reps of 7#/medium resistance tubing)
Day 7	(10 reps of 7#/medium resistance tubing)
Day 5	(30 reps of 5#/light resistance tubing)
Day 1	(10 reps of 5#/light resistance tubing)

Flexibility training, as mentioned, should ideally be performed on a daily basis. There are multitudes of theories regarding the frequency, intensity and duration of stretch to achieve optimal results. It is our position that stretching exercises should be incorporated into your DAILY schedule and should allow long duration (one minute plus) and static (no movement/bouncing) stretching of the involved muscles, tendons and connective tissues. Each muscle/tendon group should receive approximately three to five minutes of "stretch" per session. Small changes in flexibility are of benefit during your pre- and in-season training program. In order to maximize this effect, these exercises should be performed year round on a regular basis.

A common reason that athletes delete stretching from their conditioning program is the time commitment. In many instances, our lifestyles do not allow for much free time to spend exercising, and we are constantly digging our heels in to save time for the primary focus of our training, that being skiing itself. A solution to the time dilemma may be to couple stretching with some other daily activity such as reading the newspaper, watching the television, reading the mail, etc.

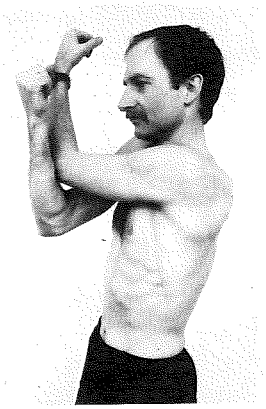

The following stretching and strengthening exercises are recommended for the competitive and recreational cross country skier. The goal of these is to prevent overuse injuries of the shoulder, trunk and leg. These exercises can be performed at home with a minimum of special equipment, and in some cases, address muscle groups not included in circuit weight training programs (rotator cuffs and tibialis anterior muscles). You can obtain free weights from a local sporting goods store and sport cord (sometimes called theraband) from a local medical supply store.

In summary, we have provided exercise guidelines and specific examples of stretching and strengthening activities that are of primary importance to the cross country skier. There are variations to these exercises that can be applied. If you have sustained an injury in the past, it is advisable to consult a health care professional (physical therapist, certified athletic trainer, sports medicine physician) who can individualize an ideal program to suit your needs.

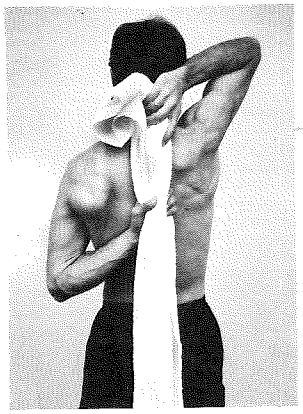

Congratulations on your accomplishment this year. It is our hope that these suggestions will assist you in many more injury-free Birkies to come in the future!

Saving The Prince: The Norwegian Birkebeiner

Part III of a three-part series.

—by John Gray and Mary Beth O'Connell

After completing Switzerland's Engadin Skimarathon, we watched the countryside change from snow-covered mountains to congested city life, as our train delivered us to the Zurich airport for our flight to Oslo and the Norwegian Birkebeiner. The Norwegian Birkebeiner is a race rich in history. The course follows the route of Norwegian soldiers carrying child prince Haakon Haakonson to safety from invaders. The 3.5 kilo pack each skier must carry symbolizes the young prince. Tradition dictates the pack contain necessary supplies to weather rough mountain conditions.

After arriving in Oslo, a city bus conveniently takes passengers from the airport to the Oslo central train station, where a travel center assistant located an inexpensive hotel just four blocks away. Ever since losing our small luggage carrier, transporting our ski bag, a growing amount of souvenirs, and luggage was beginning to get tedious. We invited our new friend, John Yves from France, to stroll down Karl Johanss Gate to experience the city and see the royal palace. On the walk we saw life-size trolls, different in design from USA trolls. Little did we know that trolls originated in Norway. From the palace, we then explored the new modern section and enjoyed a wonderful Italian pasta dinner. John Yves also needed to carbo load for his adventure, a nine-day hut-to-hut cross country ski trip across Norway. We now had a new goal for when we complete the Worldloppet!

Up early the next morning to capture as much of Oslo as we could, we experimented with various forms of transportation. Our first stop was Frogner Park to see the Vigeland sculpture garden; truly an amazing place. The sculpture garden begins by crossing a bridge leading to the central obelisk area. About every six feet on both sides are statues of men, women and children depicting different aspects of family fun. In contrast, high on the four corner pillars, are gruesome dragons ready to attack victims below. Off to one side in the pond was a circular area containing only infant statues in various poses. After the bridge, you progress through ornate gates and up steps to the central cylindrical obelisk, composed entirely of bodies of various ages stacked gruesomely on top of each other. On the steps surrounding the center obelisk are three tiers of statues. Most of the statues consist of two to five bodies, beautifully expressing a range of emotions. From the obelisk area you are afforded an excellent view of Oslo.

Our next stop was the Viking boat museum. The museum contains several original Viking boats and relics that have been excavated. In the Viking era, people of importance were placed along with treasures in a vault on the boats and then buried. Visiting the museum left us with a truly Norwegian feeling.

The train ride from Oslo to Lillehammer allowed viewing endless kilometers of gorgeous scenery as we passed villages, mountains and streams. At the train station in Lillehammer, we discovered or lodging at the Olympic Village could only be reached by taxi and wasn't close to any facilities. Finding new lodging became our newest challenge. Fortunately, the Birkebeiner office personnel were able to find us closer lodging, however, we would need to switch locations for the second night. The first place was a new hotel built in preparation for the 1994 Winter Olympics. After checking in, a German race participant walked with us to town for a carbo-loading dinner where many other racers were already talking waxes and race stategies.

The next morning, we discovered our greatest find, a spring gauge on the hotel's coat rack. We discovered that we had been training with about 15 kilos instead of the required 3.5 kilos. Our packs now seemed extremely light and only carried necessary gear, waxes and food. We also took advantage of the modern wax room to prepare our skis before exploring the city and relocating to our new accommodations.

In the window of a closed shop, we saw cross country skiing trolls, and 1994 Lillehammer Olympic pins. As a memoir of our Birkebeiner ski race, we wanted both souvenirs. Our afternoon of shopping yielded Norwegian wool sweaters, but no cross country ski trolls or Nordic Olympic pins. Fortunately, a wonderful woman, the owner of a small diner, kindly purchased and mailed the trolls to the U.S. for us.

As usual, the various ski shops had different wax recommendations, however, all agreed on klister. The wax representatives were waxing skis free of charge at the shops; if we had only known! Back at the boarding house, all the residents were discussing the race and eating various pre-race meals. We retired to our room, gazing at our Norwegian good luck poster, prepared as a special airport send-off gift from our wonderful American Lung/Birkebeiner ski buddies. We wished they were all with us now to do the original Birkebeiner race.

Race day began with a short walk to the bus stop and then a long bus ride and a short nap. Little did we realize mass confusion was soon to begin! Most race participants pick up their race packets right before the race. Our bus stopped to let us join the masses. Insufficient help existed, so people were pushing and shoving; time was running out. With our packets we walked back and sat on the bus. The bus driver announced that due to traffic he wouldn't be able to drive us to the race start. Everyone gathered their skis and walked about a mile uphill to the baggage drop-off area.

We chatted with numerous skiers to see what the kick wax for the day was, or what the expected temperature would be. Many had torches to change and apply their klister. We did our best, dropped off our clothing bags and headed for the start with minutes remaining. However, the start was a longer walk than expected, especially through the snow.

After the elite skiers, the waves for the Birkebeiner are arranged by gender and age, regardless of ability. By the time we reached the start line, John's wave had already started! Mary Beth had a chance to experiment with kick wax and watch some of the waves leave. The start area was as wide as the width of a football field, so skiers were quite spread out. Skiers were held back by men holding boards with string.

The course quickly narrowed after one-half kilometer onto the tree-lined course. The course generally had four tracks, with slower skiers to the right. The far left track was for passing. The first half was a climb up two mountainsides, above the tree line, a total climb of 600 meters over 25 kilometers. Once above the tree line, the surroundings changed dramatically. From the vantage point at the top, we could see miles of beautiful scenery across the mountain ranges. The next 15 kilometers of generally flat terrain was a welcome relief from the long climb that preceded it. Luckily, winds were minimal, otherwise the trek above the tree line could be cold and long, according to the natives. The final 15 kilometer stretch of the course was downhill, which with good snow would be heavenly, but not when icy conditions and minimal tracks existed. After some long downhill stretches, Mary Beth would stop and allow her neurons and muscles to relax. The temperature became quite warm; tracks icy. By this time the klister we had applied at the race start had worn off. Applying the hard wax we carried in our packs didn't help, in fact, made matters worse. Warm weather klister was in order.

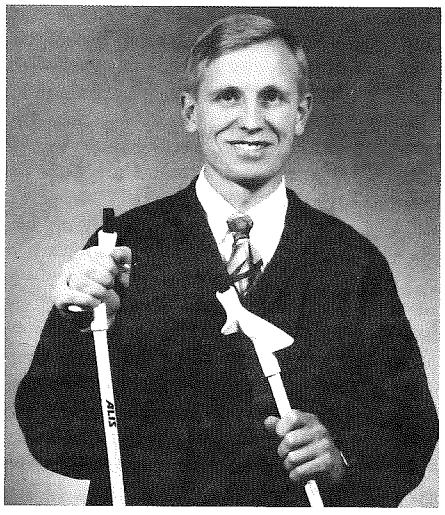

Along the course, minimal food, aid and wax stops existed. Instead, many ski clubs had their own support crews and your pack was to contain nourishment. John received a much-needed boost when a group of Norwegian women waving their native flags began singing the Star Spangled Banner. Finally, the end neared; at the lower elevation the snow had become mushy from the sun's powerful rays. The end of the Birkebeiner was anticlimactic, no large crowds or fanfare. But how could this be? We had saved the Prince! With difficulty we found the Worldloppet passport stamping area and a bus to our clothing bags. Although a logical system probably existed for retrieving clothing bags, it took us awhile and numerous people to find the women's bags.

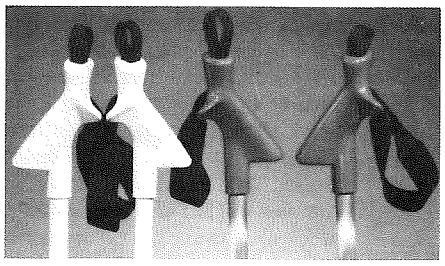

After gathering our gear, we walked back to the boarding house to quickly pack and catch the train back to Oslo. While packing, an Italian racer came back and was quite upset. He had tried to assist a skier who had dropped, but to no avail; the skier died. Medical help arrived one-half hour later. We realized how lucky we are with all the medical support people at the American Birkebeiner. We appreciate you.

At the train station, lots of stories were being told. Some of the old time Norwegian skiers shared historical replays of past Birkebeiners. On the train, everyone caught a few winks and smiled, a successful Birkebeiner completed.

On the plane home, we marveled at our international skiing adventure. Although our race times were not fast, they reflected photo opportunities and conversations with natives. Our memories are priceless.

The Worldloppet is an extremely good way to become part of the culture of foreign countries. People are wonderful and the world is beautiful. We encourage everyone to sign onto the Worldloppet challenge, regardless of ability. But as Dorothy said, "There is no place like home," and one's own bed!

WORLDLOPPET-CUP 1993 — 94

A Matter Of Appearance vs. Reality or Fun vs. Pain

—by Peter J. Dorsen, M.D., FACSM

Dorsen, a medical and sportsmedicine freelancer, is a fellow in The American College of Sports Medicine, and works with the U.S. Cross Country Ski Team. This year marked his fourteenth race, and he professes he "will ski classical from now on and start as far back as possible."

The greatest of all bards (the other "Willy") spoke about this subject. All part of that light vs. darkness schtick.

Appearance is 6,000 plus energetic souls, many clad in little more than colorful panty hose in zero degree temperatures, willingly about to negotiate arctic skär for the next 26 or 55 kilometers of their life.

Reality for my Dartmouth roommate of the early 60's, Tom Louis, Ph.D, now chairman of Biostatistics of U of M, was his mother dying a week before his Birkie. Reality was also a week of near tropical weather that canceled practice for thousands in the "Mini Apple," and sent the Birkie Board running about in Brownian movement over Olympic swimming pools that formed at the bottom of almost every hill on the course.

Appearance were 2,000 smiling volunteers from all over rural Wisconsin. All those nice people assembled to help me from Start to Finish. The majority got there at six a.m. to serve people they would never meet and to hand out sport drink, water, or truckloads of sliced oranges. Reality was an apple-pie momma rushing to find my friend Rick Sylvester's registration material at the "Problem" (child) table. Reality was the fact that Rick, a Roger Moore double in the ski parachute scene "From Russia With Love" and the 800 foot freefall scene in "The Spy Who Loved Me," slept through his standby flight out of Reno. No one's perfect.

Reality is a lunatic Middle East gunman, the painful memory of Sarajevo, or being so nervous I crashed my Acura Legend into the back of Ralph Scwartz's Izuzu Trooper. His car won. Reality were the Euro's sweeping top honors again in the men's and women's races. Blissful appearance was seeing the Kortelopet finish after two hours of a bad race. I even took my bib off at one point. Appearance and reality meshed when I saw smoke rise softly out of Ken and Marion Maki's 100-year-old outdoor sauna. Reality was what the "bath" could do to my sore muscles. No, I didn't roll in the snow. I left that to the Norwegians. If only I hadn't tried to keep up to Veli-Matti (DYNO) Monni, Hannu Pirinen, and Ahvo Taipale in the Finnish Vodka category (120 proof). Reality again. Reality was how good my hostess Linda Graham's chicken and dumplings tasted for dinner after the race.

Appearance were all those skiers (New York subway theme). Reality was the paucity of hostile gestures from anyone except the guy who kept on falling next to me when I tried to pass him going up one of the three million verticals on the Birkie trail via my own nonexistent middle lane.

The Birkie offers some mysterious test for many of us saddled with aging parents, sometimes difficult children, and banal, completed, or lost jobs. Many of us leave reality this one Saturday in February for a Walter Mitty opportunity to test the mettle we know was there a decade ago -- before middle-age spread, difficult relationships, or ho-hum lives enveloped us. For a day or two near where Al Capone and his buddies used to "chill out," grannies and farmers get to help race directors or pose nonchalantly for AP photographers. They watch skeptically as exhausted athletes pull off wet ski tops in zero degree weather. Meanwhile, the snowmobile set prefers to cheer raucously as thousands of hapless skiers make "Bitch" hill a luge run. (I was the fella with his tongue out clutching his manhood, guys and gals.)

Maybe the reality was that the Norskis stayed at home so the Czecks and Swiss could win. Sylvester's trek outdid many: "Leave my bib at the corner Conoco in Cable," the diminutive Bondlike one ordered me by phone from Reno after missing his second plane. He would make Minneapolis by six, if the plane was on time, rent a car, install his illegal fuzzbuster, and try to make "The Race" by the last wave.

Damned if he didn't reach Cable as the cannon went off for the elite wave. He had worn lycra sans long johns from California and quipped, "I spent more time going around people sideways than straight." (If I had forgotten my insulated gotchies, I would try to go fast, too.) But the reality was everyone from start to finish knew about this character who had missed his plane to make the Birkie. He gave his handwritten appeal to "the important guy with the green hat" at the start. The gal who took his timing card at the finish informed him that "Oh, you're the guy from California who missed his plane. The jury is voting on your request to get placed with the tenth wave." Bravo, Rick, you made it.

Hey, why can't the world operate this effectively? Just why are faceless thugs clubbing athletes or fanatics blasting away people they construe as their enemies? Perhaps we need more appearance of love and brotherhood like 6,000 on skis and others nice enough just to be there to help.

Even the Birkie, with its appearance of fun, excitement, yet its reality of pain, and often altered dreams, can be a great testing ground for the stark reality of our complex world. After all, not many of us made the cut to Lillehammer.

Cross train, play golf, but above all else, have fun this summer and see you next year.

Shalom and Skäl,
Dr. D

Mental Imaging for XC Skiing: Does It Work?

The author crosses the Birkie finish line, mental imaging over for another year.

—by Claude Liman

Liman, who lives in Thunder Bay, Ontario, used mental imaging to ski a 2:55 Birkie in 1993 and a 3:10 this year in slower conditions. He did beat Richard Suttie!

Birkie skiers worry about diet, base preparation, wax and their final training sessions as they count down to race day, but they should be thinking of the mental side of skiing as well. The relatively new field of sports psychology is booming, particularly in golf, my summer obsession, and soon it will be coming to our nordic sport. One day sports psychologists will set up booths for Birkie skiers at Telemark Lodge right next to the sports massage people. Then we shall ski the race of our lives, unsabotaged by negative thoughts.

Imaging is one very important aspect of sports psychology that everyone can do, even without a personal guru. The golfer stands behind his ball, getting a clear mental image of the upcoming shot before he swings. The basketball player at the free-throw line, the baseball player in the batter's box, the ski jumper at the top of the trestle, the curler in the hack are all trying to execute mentally before they must do so physically.

As an old downhill skier, I can remember standing at the top of slalom courses, eyes closed, weaving my right hand back and forth in the air as I rehearsed my turns through the gates. Open your eyes and you would have seen a whole tribe of alpine zombies going through this same mental exercise. (Just to be nasty, I would sometimes seize a friend's hand and make him crash in a hard hairpin as he did his imaging!)

All during the 1992-93 winter I experimented with golf imaging as I skied my lonely kilometers. I suppose I played over 100 rounds in my head while touring. I would envision crucial tournament situations and then come through with good shots, always imagining the stunned reactions of my playing partners as well.

Last summer I had my best golf season ever, winning two tournaments and being in the hunt three other times. Mental imaging works!

All summer, as I waddled down the fairway after my ball, I was mentally rehearsing the upcoming ski season, this ski season that's now ending. It's a bit harder to break a 50-kilometer ski race like the Birkie down into brain-sized segments. A golf round is comprised of 18 holes and individual shots, whereas a ski race is one long shining track with only major hills or curves to distinguish it.

Does mental imaging work for cross country skiing? Certainly the top coaches must think so, for now they're asking racers to mentally rehearse the whole course, imaging the techniques they will use on key pieces of terrain.

A more pertinent question is: does mental imaging in cross country skiing work for me? Will it work for you?

I only used the technique once in the 1992-93 ski season, and it worked like a charm. At the American Birkebeiner race that February, I saw myself catching former U.S. and Canadian cross country director Marty Hall at the 45-kilometer mark. (Hall and I are old ski rivals from the 1960s in New Hampshire, and he had issued a new challenge for this 1993 race.)

Over and over again I envisioned Marty halfway up the steep hill just past Rosie's Field, laboring somewhat as I effortlessly cruised by him.

I knew he would be in front of me at this point in the race because he's a fast skier with a lot of pride; I also knew he hadn't trained as much as myself and that he'd be bonking.

It was eerie how well my mental image matched race reality. As I started up the last major hill, I saw Marty profiled near the summit. He looked like he was standing still, aimlessly kicking his skis to each side as if doing a soft-shoe dance or trying to wipe dog doo from their bottoms.

Marty Hall was doing "the funky chicken," his very own name for that horrible death shuffle exhausted skiers fall into at the end of long races!

I went by him as if in a dream. Not only was mental imaging working for me, but it also seemed to be having an almost voodoo effect on my fellow competitor!

That was the winter of 1992-93. This year's data about whether cross country imaging works for me is not as conclusive.

All winter I imagined crucial races against Richard Suttie, a.k.a. The Lizard, my friend and chief local rival in the 50 to 54 age class. For instance, before the early January Sawtooth 25 Race in Grand Marais, I skied three practice workouts with Richard, staying with him like a shadow. In my nightly mental rehearsals of the upcoming race, I always saw him catching me at the five kilometer mark, as he usually does, only this time I pictured staying with him for the remaining 20 km like that shadow I'd been in practice. At the finish I saw myself surging by him as if he were standing in a hole.

In the actual race, however, when he did come up on me at the five km mark, my legs already felt rubbery, my lungs as deflated as an old football. I pulled meekly to the side and let him go, watching him scamper away like a gazelle.

"This is that moment of truth you've been rehearsing all week!" I hissed to myself, but it was no use. If I'd been told that my wife and young son would be guillotined unless I stayed with Richard, I'd be forced to say a sad goodbye to my family and let him go.

I have thought a lot about this, compiling some reasons why mental imaging doesn't work as well for me in cross country skiing as it does in golf.

1. In golf I mostly imagine myself in conflict with the course, not with any human opponent. Oh sure, I put Trevor Jones, our best local player, in my foursome just to make the mental image sharp and lifelike, but I'm really only planning my strategy against the course. I don't try to image Trevor's round.

In skiing, however, I mostly image opponents and my responses to their tactics. Maybe I should switch to envisioning myself skiing the course well and just not worry about what Richard and Marty and the others are doing.

2. In golf, after I've imagined my brilliant 66, I tell myself, "Be real. You're not going to hit all those great shots. Why don't you image some of the normal trouble you get into?" So I go back and put certain tee shots under trees or maybe allow an approach shot to find a trap. The important point here is that I then image myself executing a good recovery shot to save par or at worst make bogey.

In cross country skiing, however, you can not really image your trouble in the same neat way. Sure, I can remind myself that I've always been tired when Richard goes by at the 5 km mark, but there's no way to mentally reproduce that totally woofed feeling of your heart pushing up through the top of your head.

3. Mental imaging works for me in golf, where I'm a four handicap, because my images are more accurate, more based on reality. I know I can pull off these good shots I'm imagining for myself because I've made them on the course before. I also know I can recover from under this imaged tree because I have done so in actual play.

In skiing, however, where I'm a 10 or 12 handicap, my speed and endurance are more imagined than real. When have I ever, in practice or a race, been able to scamper up a steep hill with my guts falling out? No, when the crunch comes, I get crunched.

The answer? I must step up my cross country training next winter and scale back the fantasy skiing I do in my mind. Eventually, as in golf, my real and imagined performances will more closely coincide.

Until then, I acknowledge that the whole psychological emphasis does seem healthy. Who knows, even this more grandiose ski imaging I'm presently doing may actually be helpful. Without it, The Lizard might have beaten me by an even wider margin at the Sawtooth.

As for this year's Birkie, Marty Hall was in Norway, doing t.v. commentary at the Olympics, but I kept having a fairly clear image of The Lizard and myself coming off Lake Hayward neck and neck and ...

I, the undersigned, know that alpine and nordic skiing are action sports carrying significant risk of personal injury. Racing, jumping, or freestyle competition are even more dangerous. Start Placement Criteria and Qualifying Races

- Waves 1-3 are based on finish times from the 1990-94 Birkebeiner or Kortelopet races only.
- Times from the Great American Ski Chase, Pre-Birkie, Central Marathon Series and the Worldloppet from 1994-95 for placement up to and including Wave 4.
- If you use times from above for the Birkebeiner, the distance must be 42ks or longer, and for the Kortelopet, the distance must be 25ks or longer.
- If you have skied in the Birkebeiner or Kortelopet, but not in the last five years or the above mentioned qualifying races, you will be placed in Wave 8.
- If you do not have a qualifying time and it is your first race, you will be placed in the last wave.

Where Was The Water?

The American Birkebeiner Ski Foundation is always working on improving the race for you, the skier. We made some changes for this year's race and the race was a huge success.

One of the new changes for the 1994 race was the Food Station set-up. We have integrated a new system for water and energy drink distribution. We are aware that a few of the early food stations did not have sufficient water, and the problem was remedied as quickly as possible. Since the race we have met, addressed the problem and the solution is in place.

To you, the skier, we apologize for this inconvenience and the hardship it may have caused you in this year's race.

Thanks for your support as we continue to strive to improve.

Congratulations, Skiers!

All of us at Dyno Overlays, Inc. extend our congratulations to the skiers who participated in the Dyno American Birkebeiner XXII. With 6,600 participants in all, it's exciting for us and our parent company in Norway to see interest in the race growing each year.

For our "Team Dyno," though, it was a year of diminished participation. We missed our usual friends from Norway and Finland, and even some from the U.S. who normally ski with us or help cheer us on. We could not fault their reason, although we were a might jealous. As an official supplier to the Winter Olympics, Dyno pressed many of its staff into service as official and "unofficial" guides for the multitude of visitors from around the world.

Those who did join us from Washington, Idaho, Minnesota, Illinois, New Jersey, as well as two Dyno Overlays employees from Finland, highly praised the trail conditions and the enthusiasm and supportive attitude of everyone involved in the race.

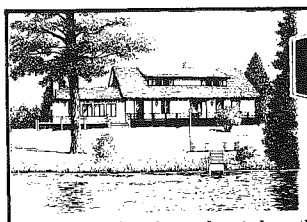

Thomas Weman, the Norwegian Ski Federation's chosen elite skier for this year's Birkie, intends to extol its merits to all his skiing friends back in Norway, many of whom were on the Olympic teams, and persuade them to compete here next year. Thanks, Thomas, for all your enthusiasm and expert waxing advice, too!

We look ahead now to next year's race and to seeing all of you return. Our best wishes for good health and training to all of you and your supporters.

—Dyno Overlays, Inc.

Future Race Criteria

Beginning with the 1996 Birkebeiner and Kortelopet, skiers will be able to submit Birkebeiner and Kortelopet race times for THREE years prior to each race for wave placement criteria.

TEAM BIRKE

—by Steven Gaskill

Team Birke Ski Education Foundation would like to thank the American Birkebeiner Ski Foundation for their substantial support of Team Birke. Their logistical support, financial help and leadership have gone a long way towards helping Team Birke youth and elite teams excel.

Coaches Education Program Formed

We are excited to announce the formation of a year-round coaches education program for cross country ski coaches. Team Birke is committed to coaches education as part of our effort to help raise the level of XC skiing in the midwest.

Two Monday evenings a month, Ahvo Taipale and Steve Gaskill will hold formal education sessions. This will be an ongoing nine-month program starting in May and running through January. Half of the programs will be classroom theory covering coaching, training and technique, while the other half of the evenings will focus on practical application of coaching.

The Twin Cities based program will be coordinated by Ahvo Taipale, graduate of the Finnish Ski Association Coaches Education Program. Ahvo will be assisted by Steven Gaskill, former director for coaches education for cross country and jumping for the U.S. Ski Team.

The coaches program is open to all high school, college and youth coaches. Preference will be given to active coaches. Acceptance is via personal application letter. Applicants must be Team Birke Ski Education Foundation members. There is no fee to applicants who are accepted for the program. The program will probably be limited to about 30 participants. Early registration is encouraged.

For coaches not in the Twin Cities area, we will be offering internships at camps and our Thanksgiving coaches seminar.

Adult Programs and Camps

Team Birke will be hosting many programs for adults during the upcoming year. These range from our weekend training and technique programs during the summer and fall, to week-long programs. We will be offering a trip to Dachstein Glacier in October, early snow skiing at Thunder Bay in November, our Thanksgiving Seminar and other programs.

Programs For '94-95 Gearing Up

Team Birke will offer year-round programs at four locations in the Twin Cities area this year. These programs are for masters, seniors and high school skiers. High school skiers have the option of signing up for half of the year (May-September). All of the programs will meet on Thursday evenings from May through the Birkebeiner in February. The programs are offered in St. Paul, Hyland Park in Bloomington, Western suburbs meeting primarily at Baker Park, Northwest, meeting at Elm Creek and French Regional Park.

The Year-Round programs focus on both classic and skating techniques. The groups meet an average of three Thursdays of each month to work on technique skills. In the summer we meet for roller skiing twice a month and dryland drills once a month. In the winter we meet for skiing on snow. In addition, there are monthly lectures which each focus on an aspect of cross country skiing. Each of the four programs has groups for all abilities, from those just getting started to the very competent.

Early registration is encouraged as these programs can fill up very early. Cost for the program is $300 for the entire year and includes membership in Team Birke Ski Education Foundation and all of the benefits that go along with membership.

Junior Programs

Team Birkie will offer several options for junior skiers this summer including camps and on-going programs. Top members of our junior team and midwest juniors who finish well at the Junior Olympics and in other competitions will be invited to attend camps and train with the Senior Elite Team.

As in the past, we will be hosting open junior camps for junior and high school cross country skiers. If you are intereted in our junior camps, please write to us for details.

In the Twin Cities, Team Birke will again be hosting the Tuesday, Thursday morning program at Hyland Hills. This year those workouts will be meeting at the same time as the Elite Team including Suzanne and Mark King, Marc Beitz, Angie Robinson and Jan Guenther. This will give all of the participants a chance to train with or near the best cross country skiers in the midwest. Skiers may join for the entire summer or for individual months in June, July and August.

New for juniors this year will be the opportunity to join our year-round groups during the summer and the fall. These groups meet on Thursday evenings at Battle Creek Park, Hyland Park, Baker Park and Elm Creek. For juniors, the program will run from May through September.

Members Having Good Results

Team Birke members continue to improve in leaps and bounds as the program grows. Suzanne King qualified for the Lillehammer Olympic Team, Bonnie Weiskopf had her best season ever and is currently leading the Great American Ski Chase. Marc Beitz is moving toward national excellence. Angie Robinson has broken into the top ten women in the U.S., and Mark King is currently second overall in the Great American Ski Chase. Jan Guenther continues to improve, winning at the Mora Vasa and a fourth at the Birkie.

Our juniors took 18 of the possible 30 top five places in the Kortelopet for ages 24 and under. Graduates Gina Legueri and Kurt Wulff both were the top junior U.S. qualifiers to the World Junior Championships. Our juniors have also recorded over 160 wins in regional and high school races this winter.

Most importantly, however, we are extremely pleased with the improved level of skiing, in both juniors and seniors in the midwest. We like to think that Team Birke is having an impact on that higher level through our coaches education, adult and junior programs.

We are looking for a home with facilities for training, offices and other amenities needed for a first-class club center. When that happens, we believe that we can really begin to help the U.S. move again towards international excellence. We hope that you will join us.

Off-The-Road In Birkie Country

Looking for some outstanding mountain biking opportunities this spring, summer and fall? This year it will be a lot easier to find some great places to ride in northwest Wisconsin thanks to the efforts of the Chequamegon Area Mountain Bike Association (CAMBA). In less than one year's time, CAMBA has effectively more than doubled the amount of organized off-road bicycle trails in the state of Wisconsin by creating a system of over 300 miles in their corner of the state.

Off-road bicycling (mountain biking) has, for the past ten years, been a peripheral recreational activity in the Chequamegon area of northwest Wisconsin. With the exception of the annual Chequamegon Fat Tire Festival which is, in fact, the largest competitive off-road cycling event in the country, the area was otherwise little used by mountain bikers. The reasons for this are several, one of which is the fact that the area is comprised of vast forest lands, the majority of which is uncharted in the necessary detail for cyclists to competently and confidently navigate and safely return home at day's end. Even the most recent U.S. Geological Survey quadrant maps do not include the many logging roads, ancient forest roads, and other trails suitable for off-road bicycling that exist in the forest. There are, without exaggeration, literally hundreds and perhaps thousands of miles of off-road riding opportunities in the Chequamegon area. For most, however, their only experience with mountain biking in the area comes the second Saturday after Labor Day when they and 2,500 of their closest friends get together for the Chequamegon Fat Tire Festival. CAMBA's user-friendly system is designed to change that pattern by encouraging more off-roadists to explore what the area has to offer, as there is definitely much more than meets the eye.

Beginning in July, 1992, and continuing through the fall of 1993, CAMBA set out to identify, map, mark, and promote an extensive network of off-road bike trails in and around the Chequamegon National Forest area. CAMBA volunteers scouted, researched, and recommended the best trails to use in the system; developed maps for each of the six trail clusters (sub-systems) within the overall system including written trail narratives; developed an area map indicating the locations of the six clusters as well as other ridable gravel and paved roads surrounding each cluster; pursued and secured the necessary funding for the entire project; and implemented the actual layout of the trails which included: sinking 900 4x4 posts in the ground, attaching 1,500 arrows and custom printed signs, and 100 "You Are Here" markers; and building and installing 10 trailheads, as well as fulfilling all necessary legal and municipal requirements to implement this ambitious undertaking. By mid-summer (1993) the system was ready for numerous fat tire enthusiasts to experience and enjoy.

In a sense, all of the CAMBA trails already existed (sort of), and the "only" thing the organization had to do was to identify trails most suitable to a wide range of riders, and map and mark them. In fact, the entire CAMBA project required cutting very few trees, no bulldozing, and all trail marking was done in an aesthetically pleasing manner so as to minimize sign pollution.

Unlike many more populated areas in the midwest, the Chequamegon area doesn't really have what are perceived as user conflicts. Nonetheless, one of CAMBA's goals in establishing this trail system was to provide alternative riding opportunities so that people didn't continually have to go back to the same places, i.e., the American Birkebeiner or Rock Lake ski trails, and therefore lessen the impact on these increasingly popular riding areas.

CAMBA believes that the Chequamegon area could become the mountain biking mecca of the midwest, and the sport of mountain biking the next big seasonal activity for this area. Already a heavily tourism-based economy, this could be just the thing to fill in some of the slower seasons, particularly spring and fall. The mountain biking season realistically could run from late April through November (or when the snow begins to fly).

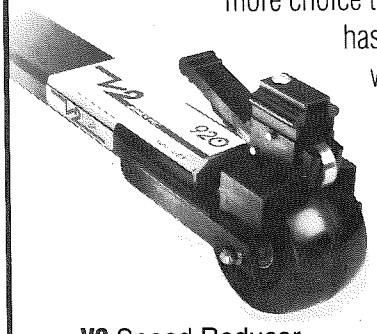

The Chequamegon National Forest encompasses some 850,000 acres in northern Wisconsin, of which CAMBA has adopted an area of approximately 1,600 square miles. The six cluster areas, based in the communities of Cable, Namakagon, Drummond, Delta, Seeley, and Hayward (total combined population of less than 10,000), each include a good mix of single and double track, forest roads, snowmobile trails, and logging roads. CAMBA trails are of varied distances and designed to accommodate riders of all ability levels including trails suited to easy touring and family-style outings. Each cluster has approximately 25 to 50 miles. In addition, ridable gravel Forest Service roads in cluster areas have been identified and highlighted on system maps.

Whether you are serious about the sport of off-road bicycling or just enjoy getting out to see the woods from a different perspective, consider biking the CAMBA trail in northwest Wisconsin, and you'll find some of the best off-road riding in the midwest.

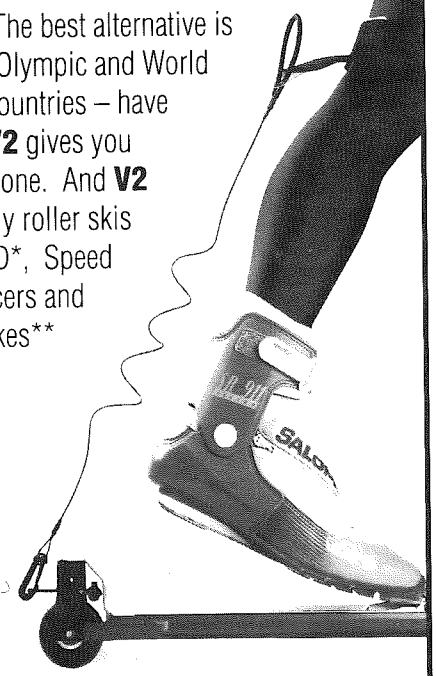

For further information, about off-road bicycling in northwest Wisconsin, contact CAMBA, P.O. Box 141, Cable, WI 54821, or call (800) 533-7454.

'It's Like Summer Camp On Skis!' Who Says Training Can't Be Fun?

Karen Wolf tries to put her love of cross country skiing and cross-country ski racing into perspective: "I'm committed ... but not obsessed."

She loves cross country skiing, she likes cross country ski racing, and the Exel-Peltonen training camps at Silver Star Mountain Resort in snow-blanketed British Columbia "give me the chance to be intensive without, y'know, being intensive."

Wolf, who joined her husband and a friend at the December 1993 Exel-Peltonen camp at Silver Star, says she's going back. And she'll be bringing some friends to learn -- and laugh -- with former Olympic coach Marty Hall and his staff.

A Chicago native, she began back country skiing perhaps 15 years ago after moving to the Seattle, Wash., area. An urban planner for King County, she and her husband, Mike, ski regularly. This is her fourth winter of track skiing, so she was pleased to get diagonal stride and skating technique instruction. But Wolf, 37, also enjoyed the fact the Exel-Peltonen camp isn't just a high-powered racer camp, that there are folks --like her husband -- who simply want to learn how to ski better.

"I liked the whole package, the total immersion -- the 'Gospel, according to Marty' approach -- and the comprehensiveness. But I liked the fact there were enough people, and the camp is so well-organized, that you could ski with people at your level. Really, I was a little bit anxious because I didn't know if we'd be skiing 30 kilometers every day, or what, but it was great!"

Camp Director Marty Hall, former head coach of the U.S. and Canadian national teams, and five-time Olympic coach, has designed a "one-stop" shopping five-day or seven-day program for any age level of skier, from novice to elite skier.

The camps at Silver Star, with its 35 kilometers of trails in the heart of BC's snow-rich Okanagan Valley and site of the opening World Cup races of the 1992 season, run from November 13th to December 9th. The "curriculum" includes a total approach to cross country skiing: clinics about technique, equipment selection and base preparation, waxing, training, daily video analysis by the staff of fully certified coaches, training meals with an emphasis on tastiness as much as training, and an opportunity to ski with members of the Canadian national team.

"It was a lot of fun with the national team skiers there. We could eat with them and chat with them," according to Wolf, "and give 'em the whole Twenty Questions bit."

Day care is available for parents with youngsters. The variety of off-track activity ranges from hot tubs and a swimming pool to shopping in the resort's cluster of shops. Each camp isn't just all skiing (although lighted trails allow the true, hardcore skier to go out at night, too); set in a western resort town, Silver Star has more than one saloon, more than one place to fine-tune social skills, too.

"The truth is, though, most of us were asleep each night by about 9:30," Wolf concedes.

Hall says the reliability of early-season snow makes Silver Star an ideal site for the Exel-Peltonen camps. Being able to hop on a trail at the door to your hotel is a big plus, too!

"All the reasons that made me decide to make Silver Star the national team's early-season training site are just as valid, perhaps even more so, for these training camps. Believe me," he says, "from what I've seen in five years of being involved with these camps, the people who go to these camps are just as dedicated, just as committed as Olympic-level, world class skiers."

Or, as Karen Wolf says, "There's the skill work, the technique instruction, and everything I wanted ... but there's also the fun. It's not a forced march. My only complaint is that there weren't enough hours in the day. It's like a summer camp on skis. It was very hard to leave and go back to work."

AT RUSH HOUR, YOU DON'T WANT TO WORRY ABOUT YOUR GROOMING.

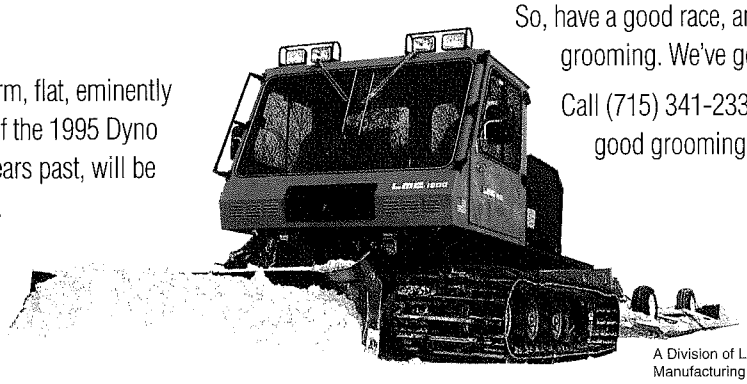

When you've got 13 kilometers to go, when you've got 7,217 competitors on all sides pushing you, when your breath is freezing into ice on your face, the last thing you want to worry about is your grooming.

Not your coiffure, your trail.

The surface needs to be uniform, flat, eminently skiable. That's why the route of the 1995 Dyno American Birkebeiner, as in years past, will be groomed by an LMC Beartrac. Whether it's Main Street in Hayward, the 52 kilometers of race trail, or a trail in a state park, people the world over depend on LMC Beartrac to leave the surface as smooth as a baby's behind. As one of the developers of snow grooming machines, we've been doing just that for over 32 years.

So, have a good race, and hey, forget about your grooming. We've got it covered.
